

Wedding Mad Lib

It was the day of the wedding and [1_____] was getting ready. He was wearing a [2_____] suit with [3_____] shoes and [4_____] cufflinks. The best man was sick so [1_____] got [5_____] to fill in. [5_____] had the great suggestion that they should swap [6_____] instead of rings at the ceremony, as it was a symbol of [7_____] in [1_____]'s little-known [8_____] heritage.

Meanwhile [9_____] was getting her makeup done by the [10_____] as they really knew their stuff. She had [11_____] lipstick and [12_____] eyeshadow. Her dress was covered with small [13_____] [14_____]; she looked beautiful and a bit [15_____].

As the ceremony began, [1_____] stood at the altar looking [16_____]. “[17_____],” in a [18_____] style, played as [9_____] [19_____] down the aisle. Everyone started [20_____], and as [9_____] and [1_____] stood there looking at each other’s [21_____], they began their vows.

“I promise to [22_____] with you every day, to love all of you, even your [23_____], until we are [24_____] years old.” “[25_____],” said [9_____], and with that they exchanged [6_____] and were declared married.

It was an absolutely [26_____] wedding.
