

A Fall Mad Lib

It was the first day of Fall and [1_____] had invited a couple of friends over to celebrate. [1_____] thought it would be a/an [2_____] idea for everyone to make a pumpkin pie together. So when [3_____] and [4_____] arrived, [1_____] had everything ready to go.

"I thought we would make pumpkin pie together," said [1_____].

"What a great idea," said [3_____], "but I'm trying to cut down on sugar, so could we use [5_____] instead?"

"Of course!" said [1_____]. "Let's put all the ingredients for the filling in this [6_____]."

[4_____] began to stir the mixture with a large [7_____] and after [8_____] of stirring, it was ready to pour on top of the pastry in the pie dish.

[1_____] put the timer on for [9_____] and placed the pie inside the [10_____]. When it was done, [3_____] put [11_____] on his/her hands for protection and took it out, placing it on the table. [4_____] came over and topped the pie with tiny bits of [12_____].

"[13_____]!" said [1_____] approvingly.

[4_____] picked up a large [14_____] and cut the pie into [15_____] slices.

[1_____] remembered he/she had once read that you should always serve pumpkin pie on a [16_____] so he/she grabbed one from the cupboard.

As they sat on [17_____] around the table with their slices of pumpkin pie, [4_____] raised a toast.

"Thank you, [1_____], for this [18_____] pie. And as the famous quote by [19_____] goes, a [20_____] is worth more than gold, because [21_____] shines brightest when it's shared with [22_____] friends. Happy fall everyone!"
